

THANK YOU, NOT GETTING TIRED

By Adolf P. Shvedchikov

Thank you, not getting tired,
For the wonderful sparkle of innocent tears,
For the lips that crimson roses
And for the nectar of heaven,
For waiting, I hope,
Just about to appear, come,
You make a love bonfire,
Dreams come true!
Where did you come from, I don't know,
Blood suddenly began to play with fire,
My imperishable love,
You are my unearthly joy!

YOU ARE MY RELIABLE LOVE

No, I don't need violent tears,
Streams of frantic passions,
I don't need thunder and lightning,
Spatters, slamming doors!
I want to be with you
And hold your fingers tender
So that you are my reward,
Descended as God's grace!
To keep your eyes flowing smoothly,
Always love the universal light,
So that the bridge does not fall into logs

And he served us for many years!
So that we do not know deception,
To honestly live our life,
Be forever my romance
Oh, my dear woman!

LOVE'S UNCLEAR OUTLINES

Love's unclear outlines,
Unpredictable fire,
Young soul scorching heat,
Excitement stormy, suffering!
I still love,
The colors of summer yet burn,
But the song of youth is sung,
The slope already turns yellow...
Love! Do not pick up the keys,
The word doesn't reveal the secret,
We wander through the maze again
And we cry out of despair!
The syndrome of love is incurable,
Don't unravel her secret,
Scattered light stream
And sadness for no apparent reason...

KEEPING IMPERISHABLE LOVE

Keeping imperishable love,
I adore you immensely
And constantly chanting

Like a ray of sunny day!
So pure silver ringing
Your bell voice is pouring,
We are only given happiness once
Red bewitching drunk!
Oh, honey hear me
And at once dispel all doubt,
How wonderful is the proximity of the moment
And how acute is the stubble of longing!
So, in vain without scolding,
Store me the girl's caresses,
Mix the love of imperishable paint,
With languid lips beckoning!

HAVING MET YOU ONCE IN MY LIFE

Having met you once in my life,
I don't want lose anymore,
God grant that the path is always bright,
We will sculpt life together!
And let the hearts beat in unison,
Let our bodies merge,
Loved ones don't break up,
When fate brought them together!

DO NOT LEAVE ME ALONE

Like a hungry man, a crust of bread,
Like a sip of water in the desert,
For me you are always a shrine,

For me you are an asterisk from the sky!

I following you everywhere,

I'm afraid I'm about to lose you,

And I don't notice the borders

Between reality and delirium...

COME TO ME!

Come to me on a frosty clear evening,

My hospitable house is open for you,

I will warm you with my wing,

Let the candles burn, crackling!

I'll kiss the sensual shoulders,

And an invisible thread will bind us,

We can connect our hearts,

Come soon, how thirsty for this meeting!

Bio

Adolf P. Shvedchikov

Russian scientist, poet and translator

Born May 11, 1937 in Shakhty, Russia. In 1960 he graduate from Moscow State University, Department of Chemistry. Ph.D. in Chemistry in 1967. Senior researcher at the Institute of Chemical Physics, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow. Since 1997 - the chief chemist of the company Pulsatron Technology Corporation, Los Angeles, California, USA. Doctor of Literature World Academy of Arts and Letters.

He published more than 150 scientific papers and about 600 of his poems indifferent International Magazines of poetry in Russia,USA, Brazil, India, China, Korea, Japan, Italy, Malta, Spain,France, Greece, England and Australia. He published also 38 books of poetry. His poems have been translated into Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Greek, Chinese, Japanese, and Hindi languages.

He is the Member of International Society of Poets, World Congress of Poets, International Association of Writers and Artists, A. L. I. A. S. (Associazione Letteraria Italo-Australiana Scrittori, Melbourne, Australia). Adolf P. Shvedchikov is known also for his translation of English poetry ("150 English Sonnets of XVI-XIX Centuries". Moscow. 1992. "William Shakespeare. Sonnets." Moscow. 1996) as well as translation of many modern poets from Brazil, India, Italy, Greece, USA, England, China and Japan.

In 2013 he was nominated for the Nobel Prize for Literature.