

Friends

By Dr. Sangeeta Sharma

Friends who come from far-off shores
Are fresh whiff of air
Who bring along sweet fragrance
Of the countries distant.
An ocean of love
They irrigate your varicose veins
And drench the parched selves
Revive with their company
And cheer your heart
In a special way.
Sensitize you to your strengths
You have been oblivious to
Infuse a new energy
Invigorate, elevate and soothe
Prepare you to go that extra mile
For the succor of the other
The short tryst rejuvenates
And morphs you into a higher being
More fulfilled and complete than ever....

Episteme: an online interdisciplinary, multidisciplinary & multi-cultural journal

Bharat College of Commerce, Badlapur, MMR, India

Volume 1, Issue 5

March 2013

Bio

Dr. Sangeeta Sharma is widely published as a critic and poet. She is senior faculty in the Department of English at Birla College of Arts, Commerce and Science, Kalyan, affiliated to University of Mumbai, India.