
LOVE FOR HOMELAND

By Maryam Ahmedova

Translated from Uzbek by Asror Allayarov

Your lawns assuage my soul,
Your leaves are the glory of the universe.
Let your yearnings get into my heart,
I fell in love with you, my homeland.
Your land is priceless that everything grows,
Your rivers is effulgence in my soul,
There is a wave in my soul as your mountains
I fell in love with you, my homeland.
I recognized myself in this homeland,
My parents and your cuddle,
I found my diamond - word from you,
I fell in love with you, my homeland.
You gave me your love as your child,
You created bright opportunities for us.
You placed your magic in my body,
I fell in love with you, my homeland.
My wonderful homeland, keep rising,

You spill as if the rain to souls.

If I leave you remain in my heart,

I fell in love with you, my homeland.

Bio

Maryam Ahmedova was born in Kitab district, Kashkadarya region, Uzbekistan. She worked for several newspapers in Tashkent. Her poems included in “Modern Uzbek literature” international anthology in India and the others in Uzbekistan. Her 5 books published in Uzbekistan. She gained national and international awards.